

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

CRIMINAL NO. 18-20128

v.

Hon. STEPHEN J. MURPHY

D-1 CHRISTIAN MAIRE,

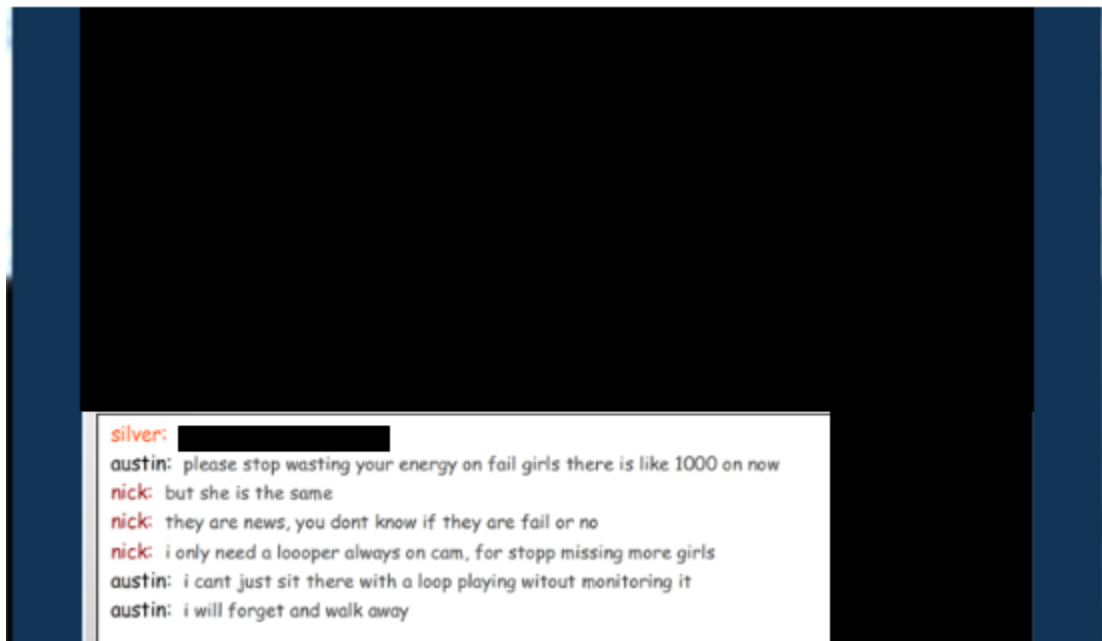

Defendant.

Government's Sentencing Memorandum

This is an organized crime case. Christian Maire is the mastermind of this particularly egregious crime syndicate. Maire and his fellow group members pretended to be teenage boys to gain the interest, trust, and cooperation of preteen and teenage girls. These men psychologically manipulated their victims to get them to engage in sexual activity on web camera on an unmonitored, chatroom-based website. They hunted girls. They lied to girls. They manipulated girls. They ganged up on girls. They sexually exploited girls. And they did so repeatedly, for years, victimizing more than 100 girls (only a fraction of whom have been positively identified). Maire led this well-organized, disciplined, and experienced group. This group did not invent the sexual exploitation of children, but they may have perfected it. Maire's conduct as child exploiter, as leader, and as enabler of others warrants the only sentence sure to prevent him from hurting another child again: life in prison.

I STATEMENT OF FACTS: THE BORED GROUP

Earlier this year, this Court sentenced several men for their participation in a child exploitation enterprise. (United States v. Eisley, et al., 17-20632). That prior group, like the group before the Court now, primarily used Website A to exploit its victims. This Court is thus familiar with Website A, which is an unmonitored, chatroom-based website that allows its users to communicate in real time through a chat function while as many as two users can appear live on web camera in a particular chatroom. Website A's display included the live web camera activity, the chat dialogue box, and a user list. It looked like this:

Any user could create a new chatroom by simply giving it a unique name. Importantly, Website A did not provide a centralized list of all of the active chatrooms. That meant that Website A users needed to know the precise URL (or address) of the chatroom in order to enter it.

The defendants in this case spent almost five full years on Website A creating dozens and dozens of individualized chatrooms for specific victims. For reasons unknown, they typically included the word “bored” in the title of their chatrooms (e.g., Website A/justsobored, /borednstuff, /fuckingbored, /boredascanbe, /boredasfuk, /sooooobored, etc.). The group is therefore known as the “Bored Group.” Its history and strategy of exploitation follows.

A. The Formation of the Bored Group

The Bored Group started around 2012 and remained active through 2017. The men initially met on a moderated, fairly well-known social media platform called Stickam. Stickam monitored its website for certain kinds of sexual activity. Frustrated by this monitoring, the men moved to another website with less oversight. That website rewarded its members with “points” every time they wrote a message to a female, went on web camera themselves to entice a female to engage in sexual activity, or played a pre-recorded video with this same objective (a concept known as “looping”). The Bored Group members excelled in this new format, earning enough points to be invited to the special “VIP” room of the website. But just like Stickam, this website monitored for, and disallowed, underage sexual activity.

Not satisfied with VIP status on an over-18 adult pornography website, the group migrated to Website A where no one policed their activity. As this Court knows, Website A was primarily devoted to the production of child pornography, with multiple groups of adult males using it to target 8-17 year-old children. With the group finally landing in an unmonitored format, its members were now free to act on their sexual interest in preteen and teenage girls.

B. The Evolution of the Bored Group

The Bored Group members wanted to do more than merely surf the various chatrooms on Website A to take advantage of other people's exploitation of children. Rather, they wanted to create their own chatrooms, groom their own victims, and trick their own girls into making child pornography videos especially for the members of their enterprise. To do this, the men developed a strategy for identifying and recruiting victims, employed a variety of techniques to manipulate the children into engaging in sexual activity on web camera, and organized themselves on a dynamic website to keep one another up-to-date on group developments.

1. Hunting

Most teenage and preteen girls would probably not strike up sexual conversations online with men in their 30s and 40s. Knowing this, the Bored Group infiltrated various social media websites by passing themselves off as teenagers. Using fake profiles and stolen pictures of teenage boys, the men tried to identify potential victims for the group. The group scoured popular social media sites such as Gifyo, Periscope, YouNow, and MyLOL.com. MyLOL was the group's primary hunting ground. MyLOL is a website designed to facilitate teen dating, and describes itself as "the #1 teen dating site in the US, Australia, UK, and Canada." Once identified, the group attempted to draw the targeted girl's interest by commenting on an old image or video the girl posted so as to stand out from users who commented on newer images. If the girl responded to the comment left by the group member (who she thought was a teenage boy), an invitation to a Website A chatroom would soon follow. Given the tens of thousands of teenage and preteen girls frequenting social media websites, the enterprise's recruiting efforts were wildly successful.

The Bored Group memorialized this so-called "Hunt Strategy" in a tab on the group's central hub of activity—which was known as the Sheet and is discussed in more detail later. The "Hunt Strategy" read as follows (note, a gif is an internet term for a short video):

A1	 HUNT STRATEGY:
	A
1	HUNT STRATEGY:
2	1) Find a girl on live feed (usually a slutty gif)
3	2) Follow the girl (required if private)
4	3) Find an older gif that isn't slutty, with not a ton of comments
5	4) Leave a comment with @username to bloop, giving some compliment and asking her to message you (or to follow you)
6	5) If she messages you, you did the five steps correctly, and you can even remove your comment
7	NOTES
8	-Net result is you take your old first message and make that your comment.
9	-By choosing an older/unspammed gif, your comment is more likely to be seen by the girl, and less likely to be seen by heroes.
10	-Also, you look like less of a perv by not participating in the flood of hornyness on the new gif.
11	(Feel free to Edit/Refine)

See Exhibit B. Importantly, the group’s Hunt Strategy noted that commenting on a sexually suggestive image or video may alert the victim to the true interest of the group. Therefore, the group’s plan was to comment on more benign images or videos to mask the hunter’s real intent (i.e., “you look less of a perv by not participating in the flood of hornyness on the new gif”). Likewise, by using an older, non-sexual image or video the group hoped to avoid what it called “heroes.” Heroes are fellow social media users who alert girls to the sexually exploitive nature of the group, thereby thwarting their scheme.

Hunters served as the essential first step to obtaining new victims. One Website A user described “hunting” this way:

A hunter chooses a website called – you can call it hunting ground if you want . . . they choose a website. They go there . . . Low viewer counts are always ways to avoid competition with other groups. And it can also be used as a tool for enticement and coercion. Because if you’re broadcasting, you want people to talk and interact with. If they’re not there, well, that’s a tool. Come over here. There’s people over here ready to talk to you. And minor females, for the most part, want people to talk to and some sort of attention based on what I’ve seen . . . a hunter’s primary job was procuring targets and minor female victims for sexual exploitation and redirecting them to a specific location created by the hunter.

United States v. Fuller et al., Crim No. 16-20239, Apr. 4, 2017 Tr. T., 402-03.

2. Enticing

The Hunt Strategy (and Hunters) only took the group so far. Once the targeted victims arrived at one of the Bored Group's chatrooms on Website A, the group still needed to convince her to undress and/or masturbate on camera. That is where the "talkers" of the group took over. "Talkers" attempt to make the girls feel comfortable in discussing a variety of subjects: school, family, sports, and, of course, sex. The talkers often spent considerable time building a rapport with, and engendering the trust of, the group's victims. The hope, obviously, was that the girl would so enjoy the attention and compliments of the teenage boys she recently befriended that she would engage in sexual activity on web camera when asked to do so by the talkers.

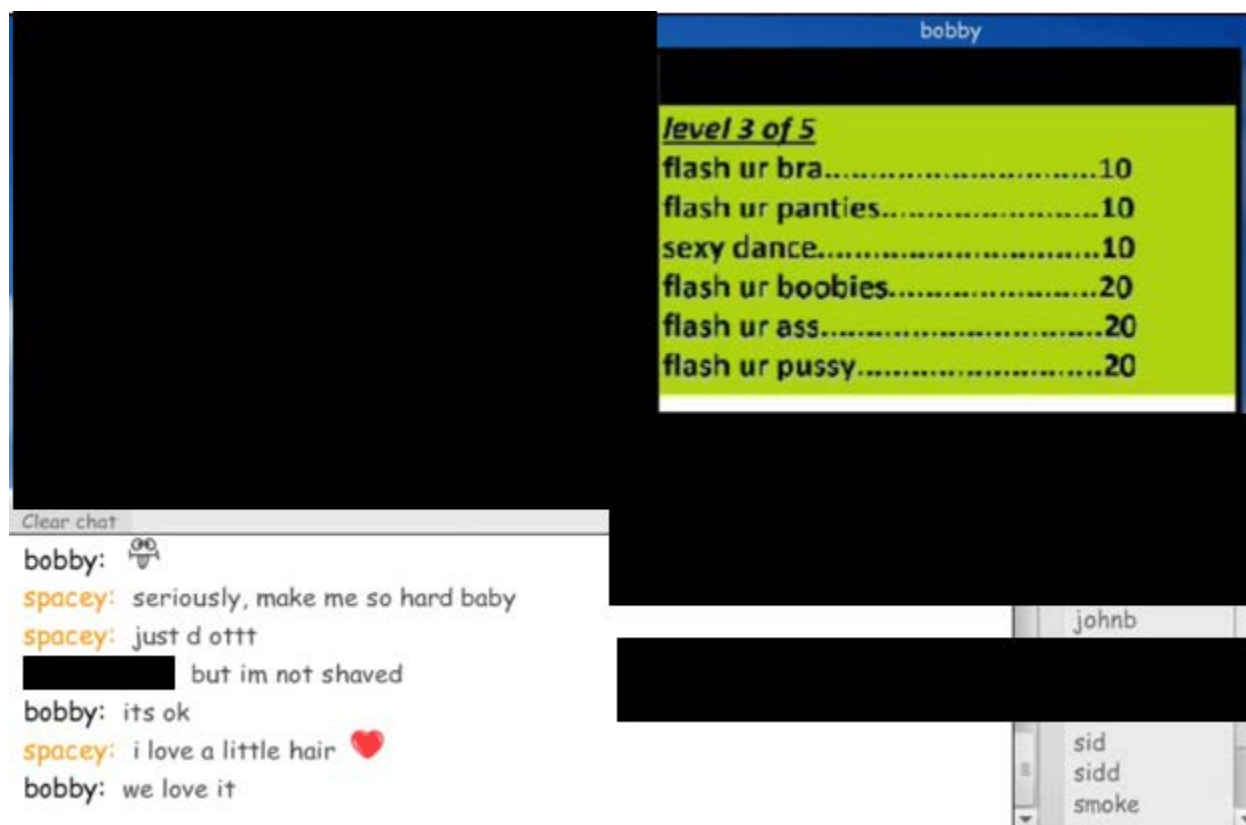

But typically the group needed to do more than just ask. So the group employed a variety of manipulative techniques to entice the victim to undress or masturbate on camera for the group. The most frequent types of manipulation were:

- Dares: challenging the minors to engage in certain behavior, evolving from innocuous behaviors, to removing clothing, to showing their naked bodies, to engaging in sex acts;
- Polls: running a "poll" to subtly manipulate the victim into specific activity.

These polls began as votes about which members believed the girl was pretty, cute, or had nice eyes. Like the dares, the polls then graduated into votes about whether the victim should remove items of clothing, masturbate, or engage in other activity. See Exhibit I, Group Using Polls to Target Minor;

- Competitions: using a “points” system, sometimes pitting one minor against another, when two potential victims were in a chatroom at the same time. The group would have two girls get on web camera in one chatroom and give them points for taking off certain items of clothing and engaging in sexual activity. The girls could go from “Level One” to “Level Two” if they obtained enough points, then to “Level Three,” and so on. An example of the group’s use of competitions is depicted below:

- Block Camera: If one group member had a particularly close relationship with a victim (known as the “handler” for that minor), that member claimed to the victim that he could prevent other people in the chatroom for seeing the victim on camera. As moderator of the chatroom, the lie went, the handler could block the victim’s camera function for other users. This reduced the inhibitions of the victim and increased the chances she would engage in sexual activity. When the handler told the other group members that he was blocking the camera, they pretended that the web camera function in the chatroom went out and that they couldn’t see the minor. See Govt. Ex. H-1 and H2, Group Uses Block Cams to Entice MV-2.
- Loops: like other groups on Website A, the Bored Group took used loops to entice minors. “Loopers” played previously recorded videos of minors actively chatting and performing sexual acts in a chatroom. The “looper” pretended to be the minor in the video and used the sexual activity displayed on camera to convince the targeted minor to engage in the same sex acts. According to one Website A user, the looper’s first task was to “convince[] the girl that the loop is real . . . and there are ways to do that. Most of the younger females are ignorant of how live people really act all the time . . . and that’s where the talkers come in. They keep constantly redirecting her thought process in certain ways in order for her to take the loop for granted. Most of the younger females . . . they're not as tech savvy as the more older ones.”

United States v. Fuller et al., Crim No. 16-20239, Apr. 4, 2017 Tr. T., 402-

03. Several members of the Bored Group used loops in this way.

Regardless of the technique or techniques used, the Bored Group's aim was always the same: break down the girl's defenses so that she would eventually undress and/or masturbate on web camera.

3. Organizing and Communicating

Like any criminal enterprise, the Bored Group needed a central hub of information and communication so that group members knew about new victims, new chatrooms, or about what technique to use on a particular girl. They created this hub on the website Titan Pad. Titan Pad (which has since been discontinued) was an innocuous website that allowed multiple users to work collaboratively on a single document while discussing changes to the document via a chat function. Titan Pad's formatting was similar to an Excel spreadsheet, with different tabs, charts, and tables. The Bored Group thus referred to their Titan Pad platform as “the Sheet.” The Sheet was private and password-protected, ensuring that the information it contained was available only to Bored Group members. Some of the tabs from the Sheet (recovered during computer forensic examinations in this case) are attached at Exhibit B.

The Bored Group used Titan Pad in two ways. First, the enterprise stored victim and chatroom information on the Sheet. One of the Sheet's tabs kept track of the girls targeted by the group, including the victims' names, links to their social media accounts, and names of the chatrooms on Website A used to exploit them. That list of rooms was broken down under descriptive headings, such as: "camping rooms" (where members remained logged into the room in the event the victim returned), "regular" rooms (for new victims or victims that appear at least once per week), "non-regular but active" rooms, "hero alerts" (online identities of individuals who would tell victims that the group was not made up of fellow teenagers), and "graveyard rooms" (rooms that were "inactive for weeks"). See Exhibit B.

Second, the group used the Sheet's chat function to communicate with one another about the enterprise's activity. Obviously, within the group chat, these men in their 30s and 40s no longer needed to pretend to be teenage boys. Instead, the group had more frank, honest conversations about how best to manipulate the girls. Put another way, despite each man being two to four times the age of the victims in this case, and outnumbering the girls by a factor of about 10-to-1, the Bored Group talked about the girls behind their backs to maximize the likelihood of exploitation. In interviews with the FBI, the defendants described having the Sheet open on one internet screen and multiple chatrooms on Website A opened simultaneously on another screen. The men used the Sheet's chat function to openly discuss whether to institute a poll or a loop or to be more direct or harsh with a particular victim. If the group decided to implement the block camera technique, they coordinated that technique in the group chat on the Sheet. See Exhibit H. And whenever the group successfully exploited a victim, non-present members of the group used the chat function of the Sheet to coordinate how to obtain recordings of the girls from other members. Communicating is key to any criminal enterprise. The Bored Group is no different.

When Titan Pad ceased operations in the spring of 2017, the group moved to a different website—known as Discord—to continue the group chat. The group’s leader, Christian Maire, deleted the content of the Sheet and created a new group chat on Discord. Soon after the group reorganized on Discord, Arthur Simpatico linked the group to an online news article about the arrest of an unrelated Website A user. This article named Website A and noted that authorities had access to the login data from Website A. Worried about their own potential arrests, several members of the Bored Group stopped coming to Website A and no longer appeared in the group chat. What the group did not know, however, was that the FBI’s investigation into the group had already been underway for months prior to that article.

C. The Demise of the Bored Group

In November 2015, the FBI Detroit arrested a local child pornography suspect as part of a nationwide operation. The investigation into this offender led to the discovery of Website A and the myriad of groups using Website A to sexually exploit preteen and teenage girls. The investigation that followed uncovered several child exploitation enterprises operating on Website A.

Thus far, the FBI has successfully identified, located, arrested, and convicted four groups of men who used Website A to prey on children. Like the other groups before them, members of the Bored Group were identified through IP login information and reviews of the content of social media accounts. The Bored Group investigation also involved victim interviews, search warrant executions at group members' homes, and the forensic review of electronic devices seized from the defendants.

The following table provides a summary of the investigation as to each group member, including their role, activity, and recommended sentence:

II STATEMENT OF FACTS: THE VICTIMS

As indicated above, the Bored Group left monitored websites for the specific purpose of targeting and sexually exploiting underage girls. The group communicated the ages of its victims using a “minus” (-) sign in relation to 18 years of age. Thus, a 16 year-old girl was “-2”, 15 year-old girl “-3”, 14 year-old girl “-4”, etc. The group’s target age range was 13-17 years old. But the group victimized a girl as young as 10. Defendant Odell Ortega had a video of this now-identified girl saved on his computer. During the video, the 10 year-old girl masturbated while staring into the web camera and chatting on Website A.

Beyond the vulnerability of being children surrounded by adult men in a chatroom on the internet, many of the group’s victims had particularized vulnerabilities. Not surprisingly, the Bored Group had a plan for such vulnerable victims. And that plan was not to leave them alone. If a girl was suicidal or revealed that she was cutting herself, the group engaged in what they called a “trust building session.” Trust building sessions involved no discussion of sexual activity, but rather more sensitive chats about life and the child’s worth. To be sure, there was no benevolence in these sessions. Instead, the group used trust building as an opportunity to further engender loyalty to the group so as to increase the chances that the girl would later engage in sexual activity on web camera. Examples of the group using “trust building” include the following:

- The group targeted an approximately 15-year-old girl (MV-44) who disclosed that she had previously been committed to a psychiatric ward, she was currently in therapy, and that she was cutting and burning herself (See Exhibit D-1, Trust Building Example);
- The group targeted a then 15-year-old girl (MV-9) who told them she had an addiction to self-harm (See Exhibit D-2);
- The group targeted MV-9 who started cutting herself while they were talking together, even showing the group her cuts (See Exhibit D-3);
- The group targeted an approximately 15-year-old girl (MV-13) who they know has a mother who is a drug addict (See Exhibit E);
- The group again targeted MV-13 who cried during the enticement (Exhibit F).

Most of the Bored Group members reported that girls they targeted were cutting or suicidal. One said that about half of the girls cut themselves, another said girls “commonly” engaged in this behavior, and yet another confirmed these statements and recalled one particular victim cutting herself live on web camera. These same group members explained how this vulnerability created an opportunity for them to engage in the “trust building” described above so that they could more successfully entice these minors to undress or masturbate on camera for the group.

In all, the Bored Group victimized hundreds of girls. The FBI has identified only a few dozen of them so far. Some will never be identified and never obtain the help that they need. Others have been identified, interviewed, and provided heart wrenching victim impact statements to the court (see Exhibit A, Victim Impact Statements), or will appear at sentencing to address the Court. Each girl's story tells the tale of manipulation and exploitation. Each girl's story tries to put the unimaginable abuse into words. Each girl's story speaks not only for the author, but for the dozens of other girls who will not have the opportunity to address the Court.

For example, this past year, MV-17, victimized at the age of 13 or 14 by the group, attempted suicide by trying to cut herself with glass. She also hit a brick wall, injuring her hand. She cut her arms for years, and this behavior has only subsided during the past few months with the help of intensive therapy. MV-17 plans to attend sentencing with the supervisor of the facility where she is staying.

MV-12, who was one of the victims that cut herself live on web camera on Website A, is currently committed to a hospital and has struggled immensely. She was recently in a car accident that rendered her a paraplegic. She now has a court-appointed guardian.

MV-10 suffers from post-traumatic stress disorder and has a service dog to assist her. See Exhibit A-10. MV-19, who was targeted on Website A starting at age 11, struggles with depression and has been seeing a therapist for over a year.

She also struggles with cutting. She has a permanent therapy dog for which the family must make monthly payments. MV-16, who was approximately 14 years old when the group targeted her, struggles with cutting as well and is in therapy. Her and her mom recently moved because of concerns for her safety in light of the conduct on Website A. MV-18, who was 16 when she was targeted, moved schools and residences. See Exhibit A-18.¹

MV-1, who was 14 when first targeted, has been in extensive therapy. Her father explained that this incident has led to feelings of guilt and has impacted the whole family. MV-21, who is now 19, said that she remains terrified to leave her home. See Exhibit A-21. Other victims or their parents could write similar letters about the destructive results the Bored Group's actions have had on their families. Some parents will attend the sentencing hearing, others can't bear to. The victims all paid a cost for having the misfortune of crossing paths with the well-organized, determined, and sexually perverse group of men now before the Court.

While every victim's story is important, the letter from the mother of MV-2—the girl most frequently victimized by the group—deserves special consideration. MV-2 was an elite dancer who attended the finest ballet school in Canada. Her mother describes her as “a sensitive kid, she was precocious, intelligent, and an excellent student.” But as a teenager, MV-2 suffered from anxiety about performing well and felt isolated and lonely. She sought friendships online, including with the members of the Bored Group. As her mother put it, the results of those relationships were “worse than anything we could have imagined.” MV-2 was sexually exploited by the group for years. They manipulated and enticed her into creating more than 60 videos or herself engaged in sexual activity. Behind her back, the group both praised her for doing what they said and mocked her for being so easy to coerce.

Eventually, the FBI’s investigation led Canadian authorities to identify MV-2. MV-2’s mother noted that by the time the authorities arrived at their home, the family already felt the repercussions of MV-2’s exploitation:

the depression and anxiety had already kicked in. She missed an entire year of academic school and had to come home from the elite ballet school she had finally made it into in order to deal with her mental health. It took months, medication, and sleep in order to deal with the self-loathing that was creeping into her subconscious. She couldn’t do her school work, lost touch with her friends, and her dance dreams died. She was completely derailed, and we had no idea why. This has taken years from her. Years. I know we were precariously close [] to losing her. This could have been a very different letter.

See Exhibit A-2.

III STATEMENT OF FACTS: MAIRE'S CONDUCT

Christian Maire led the Bored Group. He was responsible for creating, editing, and updating the Sheet. Maire also recruited the overwhelming majority of the victims to Website A for the group. Not surprisingly, Maire actively participated in the group chat on Titan Pad and Discord, as well as serving as a talker to the victims of this case. Finally, Maire amassed a significant collection of child pornography. Each of these roles is addressed in more detail below.

A. Maire as Leader

Several of the Bored Group members have been interviewed by the FBI. They consistently, and universally, identified Christian Maire as the leader of the group. Maire created the Sheet on Titan Pad and, because it was password protected and private, each Bored Group member needed an invitation from Maire to join the Sheet. As explained in detail above, participation on the Sheet was instrumental in participating in this group. It is fair to say, therefore, that Maire facilitated every other Bored Group member's sexual exploitation of children.

Furthermore, during the years in which the group relied on the Sheet, it was Maire who updated the content. The Hunt Strategy, lists of active chatrooms, identities of victims, and collection of poll questions all came from Maire. When the Titan Pad platform ceased operations in 2017, other members of the Bored Group relied on Maire to delete the Sheet (and all of the evidence contained therein). The following excerpt from the group’s Discord chat occurred on May 1-2, 2017, just days after the Discord chat began (the usernames have been replaced by the true names of the defendants):

Maire: hey guys
Simpatico: hola (edited)
Maire: camp [http://\[Website A\]/weareawesome](#) jic
Simpatico: anything before i pass out? [MV-3]? (laughing emoticon).
Maire: [Provided link to Periscope webpage].
Rodriguez: talking to cuties lets see
Maire: [MV-3] has been MIA for a long while, up until just the other day. Apparently she got sick and was in the hospital.
Rodriguez: damn
Maire: Strong possibility she’s full of shit too tho. XD
Simpatico: lol
Maire: [Provided link to Periscope webpage].
Maire: [Provided link to Periscope webpage]. Banned. Damn.
Simpatico: ya, was gone by the time i clicked
Maire: What a shame. They were cute. [Provided link to Periscope webpage].
Maire: [Provided link to Periscope webpage].
 * * *
Simpatico: i cleared [Website B webpage]; just in case
Walton: hey space, can you delete everything on [Website B webpage]?
Maire: Done.
Simpatico: (heart emoticon)

This exchange shows the group’s dependence on Maire to delete their information from the Sheet. Later in this same conversation, Defendant Arthur Simpatico wrote “RIP Sheet,” to which Defendant Jonathan Rodriguez replied “it happened?” Simpatico said, “spacey [Christian Maire] deleted the pad...” Rodriguez opined, “smart.” Finally, with the death of the Sheet, it was Maire who started the group’s Discord chat to keep the enterprise going.

The above chat also showed Maire providing other group members with potential victims. Maire copied and pasted links to the social media profiles of several potential victims from the popular website Periscope. Towards the end of the conversation, after providing even more links, Maire wondered, “so now that we can see who all is on, and we have notifications, maybe people will start hunting again.”

Maire also led the group during chats with some victims. MV-2, one of the girls most frequently victimized by the group, had a special relationship with Maire. For part of the time during her victimization by the group, MV-2 would only conduct sex acts on camera for Maire. But no matter, Maire would share those files with the group. Attached as Exhibit H are two chats among the group members about MV-2. MV-2 did not participate in these chats, but rather the chats reflect what the group said about her without her knowledge. Maire relayed messages from MV-2 to the group. He told them she “wants to try making an ice dildo,” adding “let’s get some clothes off of her.” Maire later initiated the block camera manipulation (see discussion of the “block cam” technique above). Maire organized the group as follows:

Maire: she wants block cam
Maire: ready>?

Rodriguez: ok
Maire: she's soooo wet holy fuck
Rodriguez: damn
Rodriguez: let me know
Maire: ook BLOCK CAMS
Maire: keep talking dirty, if you want
Rodriguez: so wet damn
Maire: she loves taking instructions

After MV-2 apparently engaged in sexual activity on web camera for the group, Maire told other group members, “She really wanted pillow talk afterward.... I’m so sleep deprived tho I keep passing out.” In another discussion among the group about MV-2, Maire bragged, “She really loves to gag, I think it’s one of her favorite things now, ever since I was making her stay down and really choke on it.” See Exhibit H-2.

B. Maire as Hunter

The chat discussion cited above showed Maire providing links to the social media profiles of potential victims. Many other chats recovered from the electronic devices of Bored Group members likewise showed Maire hunting for the group. In interviews with the FBI, several Bored Group members identified Maire as the principal hunter for the group. Victims too recounted being recruited to Website A by Maire (who they knew as the teenage “james,” “spacey,” or “spaceyjames”).

Maire’s own words—from a variety of sources—demonstrate his role as hunter. Most obviously, as part of his plea agreement Maire admitted to serving primarily as the group’s hunter. (PSR ¶ 29). A search warrant on Maire’s MyLOL.com account—in which he pretended to be a teenage boy—showed that he provided links to chatrooms on Website A to 29 different MyLOL users, including MV-1, MV-2, and MV-3. And as the creator and editor of the Sheet Maire wrote the so-called “Hunt Strategy” the group employed. Maire therefore not only hunted himself, but trained other hunters to target and recruit victims. See Exhibit B.

C. Maire as Talker/Looper to Victims

While most of the chat conversations between the Bored Group and its victims will never be recovered, a few group members saved some of the chats. This decision allows the Court to review how the group manipulated, exploited, and treated their victims. Not surprisingly given his leadership role, Maire’s participation in the chats was extensive and disgusting. For example, Maire wrote to one victim, “seriously make me so hard baby.” He asked her to take off her panties to which the victim stated, “but im not shaved,” and Maire responded, “I love a little hair [heart emoji].” See Exhibit C. Similarly, attached as Exhibit G is a lengthy chat between the group and another victim. During this incredibly graphic² and violent chat, Maire wrote the following to the victim:

² These chats, along with some of the descriptions of the videos of child pornography the group produced, are extremely graphic. Without actually attaching the videos or images as exhibits, and in fairness to the victims, the Government provides these chats and descriptions in an attempt to accurately convey their contents. See United States v. Cunningham, 680 F.Supp.2d 844, 847 (N.D. Ohio, 2010), affirmed 669 F.3d 723 (6th Cir. 2012) (criticizing the “sterilization” that takes place once child pornography enters the legal system and the “clinical” way in which images are frequently described).

- “this is insanely sexy”;
- “I want to feel that cold skin against my cock while I slide it between your tits”;
- “I want to bite your nipple and pul it with my teeth”;
- “I wanna slide my cock down ur throat and make you gag a little”;
- “bend over that chair and get ready for a spanking . . . I wanna spank you, then pull down those undies, spread”;
- “those fine cheeks, and lick your pussy from behind.”

The girl was 15 years old when the group targeted her.

Maire’s focus on sexual activity involving children did not stop even when he knew about a victim’s vulnerabilities (beyond the obvious vulnerability of being a child). For example, attached as Exhibit D is a chat conversation between group members and an unidentified Minor Victim (MV). After the girl confided in the group that she was molested as a young child by a female family member, she explained the repercussions of the abuse for her life (“GM-1 through “GM-4” are substituted for the screennames of group members that have not yet been arrested):

MV:	and now im forced to go to a psychologist and i got put into a psych ward
Simpatico:	is she [the offender] much older?
Ortega:	still waiting for the punchline...
MV:	and i had anorexia and bulimia and i cut and burn myself. thats why i have lighters
MV:	it made a lot of stupid shit happen

MV: like i take meds now
 MV: and i get checked for my weight
 GM-1: the molestation?
 MV: because i still dont eat sometimes or i throw up a lot
 MV: and i go to a psych ward to see my therapist
 MV: i might be going back but idk
 GM-1: believe me i think your hot and would fuck the shit out of you
 MV: i honestly dont give a shit about it.
 GM-2: so none of it was actually your fault? it al came out under hypnosis? shit thats even worse that they dont believe you
 MV: i know
 ...
 MV: btw, that journal thing you all saw earlier that said be happy is for therapy
 [MV explains that she had never engaged in sexual activity with a male]

Maire: 3
Simpatico: woah
Maire: I will fix.
 GM-3: all virgin?
 GM-1: OMG i just got hard again
 GM-4: 3
 GM-3: like not even done a bj?
 MV: nope
Simpatico: handy?
 MV: nope
 GM-3: i can help u practice
 GM-1: now i really want to fuck u
 GM-3: 0
Maire: Get a banana.... we'll help you practice
 * * *
Maire: BANANA
Maire: 1

When this vulnerable girl poured her heart out to the group about a previous sexual abuse episode, and its effect on her life, Maire asked her to masturbate with a banana.

Over and over again these vulnerable girls turned to the group for advice or to confide difficulties in their lives. The group's response inevitably steered the conversations back to what mattered most to the group: sex.

Another particularly troubled victim, MV-2, confided in Maire about her anxiety and depression. Maire's response was to tell the entire group about her concerns and highlight the benefits of this girl's suffering for the group (the following exchange is attached at Exhibit H-2):

Maire: talking about dance class [Quotes MV-2 - "I always get really bad anxiety attacks while im there, and i havent been able to make any friends in my class so i dont have and that makes it really hard"]

Maire: he was playing D&D the other day... she's like a nerd in a hot girl's body XD

Rodriguez: wtf lol

Maire: [Quotes MV-2: And thats why today was so shitty, i had an anxiety attack in the morning but i still went to ballet and pointe but it just got worse and i was almost crying during pointe and i had to go home, i couldnt got to my last class. Before i started talking to you i would be up this late balling my eyes out]

Maire: She needs to start smoking pot... will fix that anxiety :P

Rodriguez: lol yes

Maire: [Quotes MV-2: Thank you<3 it took so much work to get here and i would feel like a failure if i dropped out now, but im crying every morning there in the corner of the shower room while all the girls in my class just walk by and dont give me a second glance]

Rodriguez: tell her that they are all hater because she is probably better than all of them

Rodriguez: and of course hotter

Maire: yeah...

Maire: but if she quits, well have more time with her at home

Maire: so more bates

Maire: XD

Maire: jk I could never be that evil

These chat logs provide just a small sample of the conversations Maire—a man in his late 30s—had with preteen and teenage girls. Maire was an ever-present force in Website A chatrooms for the group. No talker worked more girls than Maire.

D. Maire as Collector and Distributor

On October 23, 2017, the FBI executed a search warrant at Maire's residence in Binghamton, New York. The FBI seized Maire's electronic devices and forensically reviewed them. Maire's collection of child pornography was massive, containing more than 14 terabytes of data. The size of Maire's collection made a full analysis in this case unrealistic. Instead, the FBI has evaluated just 31.5% of the data on Maire's electronic devices. Even that small percentage has revealed 219 videos and 92 images of child pornography. The videos of child pornography spanned over 18 hours in length. By his own admission, moreover, Maire recorded at least 100 videos of child pornography. (PSR ¶ 28). The content of Maire's collection was appalling. Maire maintained more than two dozen images of prepubescent girls, seven files of infants/toddlers, and one video depicting violence/S&M.

Finally, Maire's role as leader of the group included sharing the child pornography made by the group with other members. This happened principally in two ways. First, whenever a member of the group was not present when a child the group had been manipulating finally engaged in sexual activity on camera, other group members provided their absentee brethren with a copy of the recording. Maire did this frequently often by providing a link within one of the tabs on the Sheet. Second, Maire had several one-on-one relationships with the victims in this case. Many of those victims undressed or masturbated on camera for Maire when no other group member was present. Rather than keep this material for himself, Maire often streamed it in a Website A chatroom for other group members to enjoy, or posted links to the material on the Sheet. Here again, Maire facilitated other group members in their sexual exploitation of young girls.

IV PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In February 2018, a federal grand jury returned a ten-count indictment against nine members of the Bored Group, including Maire. Each Defendant was charged as a member of a child exploitation enterprise ("CEE"), along with several other child exploitation related offenses. Maire was charged in each count. All nine have pleaded guilty to the CEE charge. (PSR ¶¶ 5-7).

SENTENCING FACTORS, TITLE 18 U.S.C. § 3553

Congress has provided, through 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), the relevant objectives and factors to be considered by sentencing courts in imposing a “sentence sufficient, but not greater than necessary.” Those objectives are: (1) the nature and circumstances of the offense, and the history and characteristics of the defendant; (2) the need for a sentence to reflect the basic aims of sentencing (including retribution, deterrence, incapacitation, and rehabilitation); (3) the kinds of sentences legally available; (4) the Sentencing Guidelines; (5) Sentencing Commission policy statements; (6) the need to avoid unwarranted sentencing disparities among defendants with similar records who have been found guilty of similar conduct; and (7) the need for restitution.

The most relevant factors are evaluated below, beginning with number 4, the sentencing guidelines.

A. The Advisory Guideline Range

In United States v. Rita, 551 U.S. 338 (2007), the Supreme Court restated that the goals of the United States Sentencing Commission in formulating the Sentencing Guidelines are to carry out the objectives of 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). Despite being advisory, rather than mandatory, the Guidelines remain an important factor in fashioning a just sentence. As the Supreme Court stated in Rita, “it is fair to assume that the Guidelines, insofar as practicable, reflect a rough approximation of sentences that might achieve section 3553(a)'s objectives." Id. at 345.

In United States v. Vonner, 516 F.3d 382, 389 (6th Cir. 2008), the Court in analyzing the holding in Rita, recognized that the guidelines represent the Sentencing Commission's attempt to reconcile the factors under § 3553(a), that these factors seek to balance Congress' competing interests in consistency, and that a confluence between the national views of the sentencing commission and the independent views of a sentencing judge results in a "double determination" which significantly increases the likelihood that a sentence is reasonable.

In United States v. Gall, 128 S.Ct. 586, 601 (2007), the United States Supreme Court provided a template for sentencing proceedings in the district court. The Court held that a district court should begin sentencing proceedings by correctly calculating the applicable guidelines. Gall, 128 S.Ct. at 596.

The Guidelines in this case are not in dispute. The parties agree that Maire is a criminal history category I with an offense level 43, resulting in a Guidelines range of life imprisonment. (PSR ¶ 97).

B. Nature and Circumstances of the Offense

The nature and circumstances of the offense warrant a sentence of life in prison for Maire. Maire led an international, multi-year child exploitation enterprise. Maire and his followers coordinated and executed a scheme of manipulation and exploitation involving more than 100 preteen and teenage girls. The enterprise targeted children as young as 10 years old and used a variety of manipulative techniques—such as polling, block camera, and looping—in their attacks on these children.

Simply being a member of this group warrants decades in prison. But Maire did more than participate, he led the way. Maire hunted girls on social media websites. Maire falsely portrayed himself to be a teenage boy to attract the attention of young girls on the teen dating website MyLOL. Maire provided links to chatrooms on Website A to dozens of the girls he met on MyLOL. Maire even posted the Hunt Strategy on the Sheet for other members of the group to model. That strategy reveals the level of manipulation Maire went to in order to trick victims, including commenting on older posts by the girls so as to stand out from others, not responding to sexually suggestive pictures so as to hide the true intent of the comment, and avoiding heroes (i.e., people seeking to protect victims from online predators). See Exhibit B. This strategy obviously took time to develop and perfect.

Maire's leadership stake in the group went beyond hunting for victims. Maire wrote, edited, and maintained the group's online hub of activity known as the Sheet. As master of the Sheet, moreover, other group members needed an invitation from Maire to gain access to the sheet. Put another way, no member of the Bored Group could successfully exploit girls within the group context without Maire. Maire thus enabled other child predators. When Titan Pad ceased operations, the group turned to Maire to destroy the evidence contained on the Sheet. He did so. And then he started the new group chat on Discord.

But Maire was no behind-the-scenes leader. As a talker, Maire spoke graphically and frequently to the group's victims. Maire used vulgar language when addressing these children. He described the conduct he wanted the girls to engage in on web camera and detailed the sexual acts he wished to commit on these children. See Exhibit C (“seriously make me so hard baby”); Exhibit G (“I want to feel that cold skin against my cock while I slide it between your tits”; “I want to bite your nipple and pull it with my teeth”; “I wanna slide my cock down ur throat and make you gag a little”); Exhibit H (Maire uses the “block cam technique” on MV-2).

Maire also collected hundreds of videos of the sexual exploitation of the victims in this case, as well as prepubescent child pornography presumably obtained from the internet. No age was too young. No conduct too depraved. No victim too vulnerable for Maire.

Finally, Maire shared a significant amount of child exploitation material in this case. Some girls—such as MV-2 (at least for a time) and MV-3—would only undress or masturbate on camera for Maire. They naïvely believed this handsome teenage boy was their boyfriend. But Maire was no boy. And he certainly was no friend. Maire shared these images and videos with the people who matter most to him: the other members of the Bored Group.

The nature and circumstances of the offense are stunning. Maire is the person most culpable for the group's conduct. His sentence should reflect that fact.

C. History and Characteristics of the Offender

Maire's history and characteristics provide no basis for a below-guidelines sentence. Maire's childhood—unlike the childhoods of his victims—was “good” and “peaceful.” (PSR ¶ 63). Other kids bullied Maire due to his social awkwardness, but he ultimately assessed his childhood in positive terms. (PSR ¶¶ 65-66). Knowing what it means to be bullied, picked on, and targeted makes Maire's formation and participation of the Bored Group even more shameful.

Maire continues to have the support of his parents, family, and best friend. (PSR ¶ 66). Maire tricked them all, it appears, as none of those interviewed could have imagined the crimes against children Maire committed every day as the leader of the Bored Group. (PSR ¶¶ 67, 69). Maire acknowledged to living a double life: his public persona and that of the leader of the criminal organization here. (PSR ¶ 69). This double life underscores the danger Maire poses to others.

Maire is very well educated. He has an undergraduate degree from a university in Canada, and a master's degree from the University of Southampton (in England). (PSR ¶ 72). He has no serious physical health, mental health, or substance abuse issues. (PSR ¶¶ 77-81). Maire has also lived in several countries around the world during his life. (PSR ¶¶ 64-65, 72). Maire could have applied his high intellect and worldly life experiences to something positive and meaningful. Instead, Maire chose a life dedicated to crimes against children.

Maire had everything: a wife, children, higher education, a good job, family support, and a wealth of life experience. He chose to foster his sexual interest in children over all of these other interests. Maire's history and characteristics support a sentence of life imprisonment.

D. The Sentence Imposed Must Reflect the Seriousness of the Offense, Promote Respect for the Law, and Provide Just Punishment

The purposes of sentencing reinforce that a life sentence is appropriate here. The offense of child exploitation enterprise is incredibly serious as it involves multiple defendants working together to sexually exploit multiple victims. Congress identified the seriousness of child exploitation enterprises when it set the minimum penalty at 20 years, which is the highest minimum punishment set forth in federal law for first-time, non-homicide offenses. See 18 U.S.C. § 2252A(g)(1).

The seriousness of the Bored Group's conduct, however, surpasses even the typical child exploitation enterprise. Maire's group produced hundreds of child pornography videos of their more than 100 victims. Despite targeting preteen and teenage girls, every group member (except Defendant Daniel Walton) was in his 30s or 40s during the commission of these crimes. And Christian Maire—the well-educated, worldly leader of the group—orchestrated it all. These girls unknowingly stepped into a lion’s den by simply posting pictures or short videos to regular teenage social media websites. As MV-2’s mother said about girls seeking friendships on the internet and meeting this well-organized gang of exploiters: “the result was worse than anything we could have ever imagined.” See Exhibit A.

This group has normalized sexual behavior that is completely abnormal. They have robbed these young girls, some as young as ten-years old, of their innocence. They have taught them that they are only special and will only get attention and “fit in” with others their age if they are willing to let others exploit their bodies. For those that have been identified, hopefully their parents are able to help bring healing and restore them day by day. But, for those that are not identified, there is no telling what damage Maire’s group has done, and whether they will ever be able to live productive, healthy lives.

To promote respect for the law, a sentence far above the mandatory minimum must be imposed. Adequate punishment here—which in this case is difficult to quantify—should be measured in terms of decades, not years, in prison for all of the group members. But for their leader, for their primary hunter, for their organizer, no sentence is too long.

E. Deterrence

A significant prison sentence for Maire will send a general deterrence message to other, like-minded individuals. Because the Internet allows users to maintain anonymity, an offender need only have recording software and knowledge of an unmonitored website to do what this group did. Recording software is now available free on the internet with just the click of a button. Thus, deterrence in these types of cases is of incredible importance. Potential offenders who think about doing what this group did, which has left permanent scars on so many young girls, should know that, if they are caught, they will likely spend the rest of their lives in prison.

Specific deterrence of Maire is likewise important. Maire proved himself to be the most dangerous of the Bored Group members. Very little was accomplished without Maire's direction or participation. And Maire is a liar of epic proportions. Maire lied to the victims in this case, pretending to be a teenage boy as he lured them into a trap with his well-organized scheme. Every victim he met and recruited received false information that forever changed their lives. Maire also lied to his friends and family. Maire played the role of loving husband and father while spending much of his free time sexually exploiting some other father's precious daughter. Maire's family and friends deserved better. These lies speak not only to Maire's character, but to the need to protect the public from someone capable of such destruction.

F. Avoiding Unwarranted Sentence Disparities

The Court must impose a sentence that avoids unwarranted sentencing disparities among similarly situated defendants. For this case, the key word is “unwarranted.” Christian Maire has no equal. Maire hunted the most girls. Maire created the Sheet and the Discord chat. Maire organized and maintained data on the Sheet. Maire invited new members. Maire spoke aggressively and despicably to the group’s victims. Maire had special relationships with multiple victims. Maire shared child pornography with other group members. There is nothing unwarranted about a life sentence for Christian Maire. No defendant, even among this group of child exploiters, is similarly situated to him.

VI RESTITUTION STIPULATION

The parties stipulated to a restitution amount of $5,000 per identified victim of the offense. The parties have prepared a restitution stipulation for the 24 identified victims in the Bored Group. The money shall be paid by the Defendant to the Clerk’s Office, who will then make payments to the parents of the victims or the victims (if they are 18 at the time of sentencing).

VII
CONCLUSION

The Government requests that the Court sentence Maire to life in prison.
